About Association of Indian College Principals (AICP)

In 1997, during a principals' conference in Delhi, the idea of creating an All India Principals organization, similar to the 'Association of Indian Universities,' was proposed. Dr. G. Ramachandram and Dr. Vinayak Shrigurkar along with few eminent principals initiated the effort, and after receiving overwhelming support, the Association of Indian College Principals (AICP) was officially formed on February 22, 1998, in Goa. The association, registered under the Societies Registration Act, 1860, and the Public Trust Act, 1950, operates with transparency and offers membership to individual Principals. It aims to address common issues in higher education and influence policy formulation at the national level.
